

20 August 2021

Dear Parent, Caregiver, Staff Member

An update for Lynfield College – day 5 tests

This letter is to update you with some information about testing for Lynfield College staff and students.

It is important that everyone at the school is in self-isolation and is tested at least twice, around now and on day 12, towards the end of the isolation period.

Some people have also managed to be tested ‘immediately’ as requested, but they will need another test on Monday 23 August, and on day 12 (see below for this date).

For those who have not been able to get tested because of long queues and wait times at testing centres, they will need to get tested today or over the weekend, and this will be counted as their day 5 test.

When this test result comes back negative, then the members of your household no longer need to stay at home.

We realise that testing has been difficult and we thank you for your patience and understanding.

Even if students or staff members have received a negative day 5 test result, they need to have another test on day 12, and stay in self-isolation until the date below.

If your test is positive, public health will be in contact. Please remain in isolation along with your household.

This is the latest advice for the Lynfield College community.
